About

I grew up in coastal Southern California in a family that valued participation in the performing arts, outdoor activities, and entrepreneurship. The short story...I started my acting and music education at age 13, started winning awards at 14, getting paid at 16, and moved to Colorado at 18 to attend the University of Colorado at Boulder. Since college, I have had many careers, including lighting designer, baker, rare coin dealer, and, of course, musician. My music career lead me to build a recording studio, and through random circumstance to hosting a pirate radio show in 2010. This is where my love for voice acting began, and has been my full time profession since 2015 offering full service in commercial, eLearning, audiobooks, animation, and audio production.
